

Pisano Tales

Sara Abdo

Once upon a time, I lived in Antioch. I was little, and scared of dogs, so I stuck to my own backyard when I played outside. Eventually, we had to move out, so my siblings and I could go to better schools. My parents got together with my aunts and uncles, and decided it would be a good idea to move in near each other to the same neighborhood.

So our 4 families moved together to the most gloriously boring neighborhood in the country. No crime at all, and all the dogs were friendly! Best of all, the cousins were just now a short walk away. We seized this opportunity. We hung out constantly, and took more walks than a husky owner. We learned the whole place like the back of our hands.

Thus I present to you: Sara's field guide to tourist attractions in our neighborhood! We'll be going over 3 factors:

Offenness:

How often do we visit this place?

Only once

Rarely

Sometimes

A lot

Constantly

Distance:

Distance from HQ (my house). No units! I don't know how to estimate.

Frequent visitors:

Who comes here?

Where to?

	Map	5
	The Backyard	7
	The Green Box	9
	Zeus Road	11
	THE TREE.	13
	Construction	15
	The Swamp	17

"Two roads diverged on

Mt Juliet Road. I took the one I always take."

-Hany

The Backyard

My backyard! It's the middle house of our 3 families, a common ground for everyone, including the amos and tetas. We hang out here every day the weather is nice. When I call the cousins and say "come outside," this is what I mean.

Beetles: 1
Guys: 0

Stats:

Frequent visitors:

Oftenness:

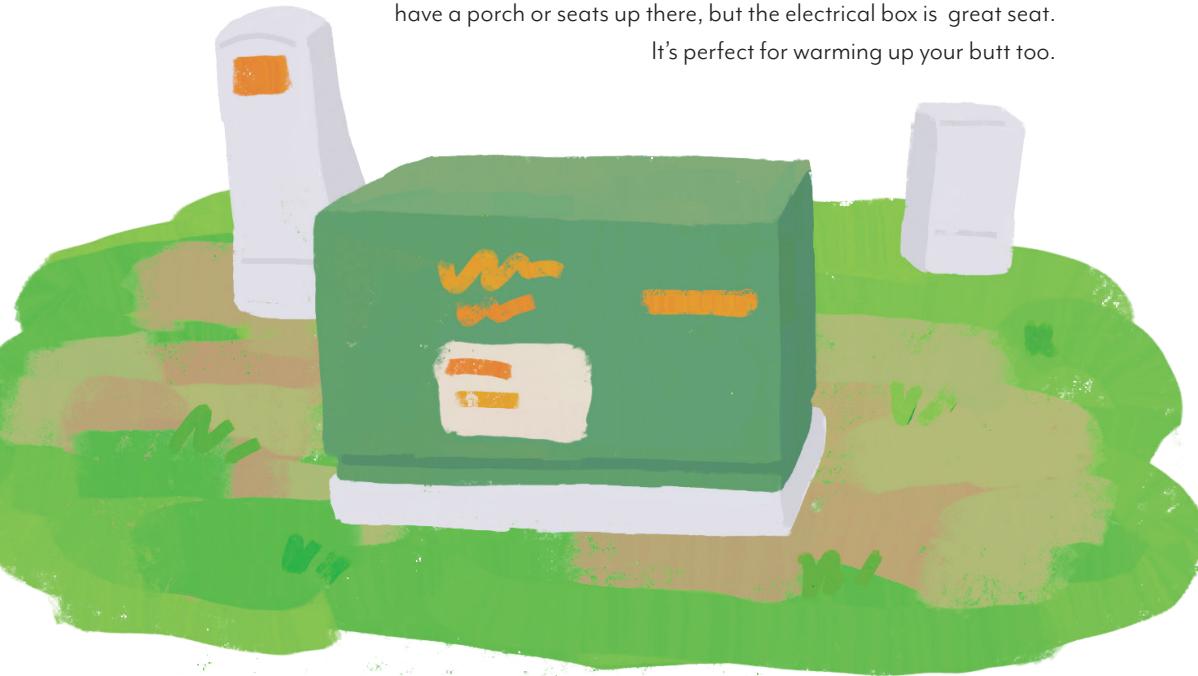

Distance:

The Green Box

My beloved green box. When the sun is setting and the backyard is shaded, go soak up some bonus sun in the front yard! None of us have a porch or seats up there, but the electrical box is great seat. It's perfect for warming up your butt too.

(This is the best part of the day)
Don't underestimate how fun it is to sit on a big box.

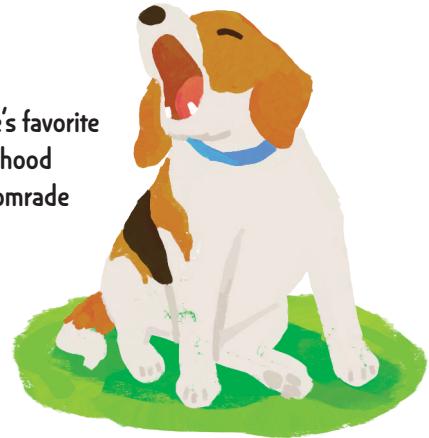

9

Hehe

Everyone's favorite neighborhood chunk, comrade

Stats:

Distance:

Ofteness:

10

Zeus Road

An asphalt trail that's an essential part of any walk, with lots of NPCs to meet.

← Comes to an abrupt end

Big grassy area (Haters call it the "wilson soccer field")

Stats:

Distance:

Ofteness:

Frequent visitors:

Why it's called Zeus Road

Zeus →
Road →

Millie my beloved

Back view

Never forget

We were taking a walk

Bright sunny day

We hear a rumbling noise

"Is that thunder?"

"I dunno, it's sunny"

We reach the top of the hill...

It's some guy rolling his trashcan out

She jumps to get a better view of you during the whole 2 minutes it takes to walk past her house

THE TREE.

Somewhere in that other neighborhood is a mysterious, huge tree growing straight out of a sidewalk. Since the first time we saw it, we've returned to the area multiple times, but haven't seen it since then.....

Stats:

Distance: ?

Oftenness: ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Visitors:

A chunky cat we found nearby and named
Caramel Frappucino :)

I think she knows something.

Construction

No construction workers?

What's more tempting than a no trespassing sign?
The chance to walk around a giant dirt landscape.

I'd like to say there's fun stuff to find but it's literally just plastic bottles and dirt. But it does have a great unobstructed view of the sky.

Stats:

Frequent visitors:

Distance: Varies

Oftenness:

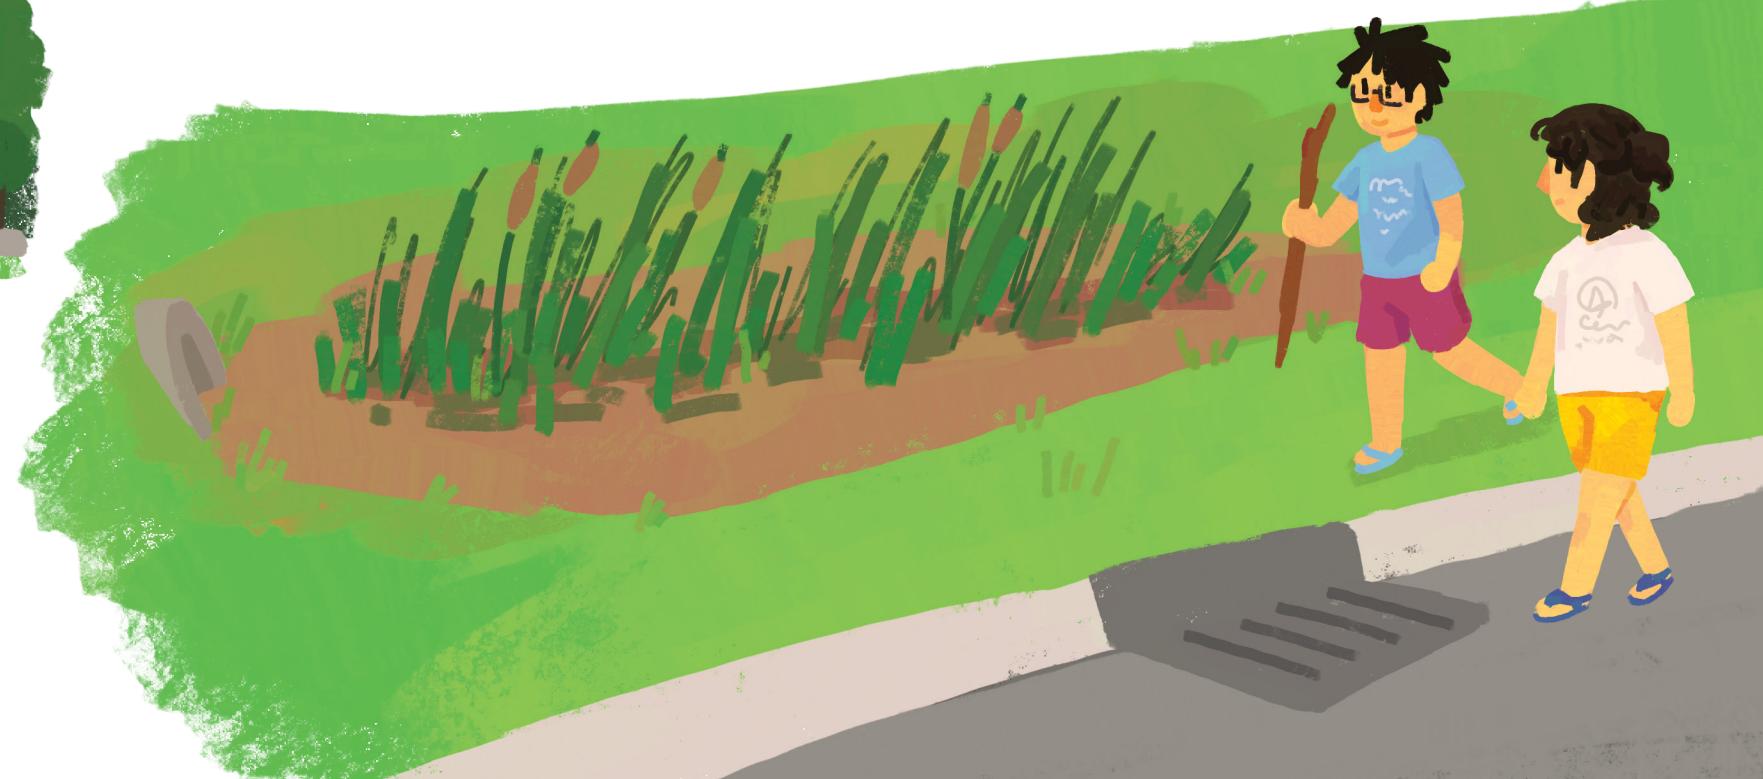

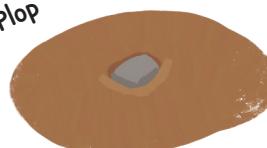

The Swamp

A mini wetland at the edge of the neighborhood, fed by some drain pipes. It looks different every time you pass :)

Tradition says you gotta throw a rock in there every time you visit (it makes a fun plop sound)

Plop

Stats:

Frequent visitors:

Distance:

Oftenness:

